Youth Leader To Speak

Marion D. Hanks, of the Council of Seventy of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, will address the devotional assembly today in the Fieldhouse. Hanks is currently superintendent of the oriental missions of the Church, in addition to his position as editor of the Era of the Church. He is also in charge of a section in the Improvement Era.

OPERATION FITNESS
Hanks was prominent in civic affairs. Hanks was the first chairman of the Utah Committee on Teen and Youth, a board member of the national "Operation Fitness" program, member of the Board of Weber College of the College of Southern Utah. Hanks is currently serving on the Board of Trustees of BYU, and member of the National Council of Boy Scouts of America. In 1957 he was appointed chairman of the President's Citizenship Advisory Committee on Youth Fitness, on which he served several years. He spoke at numerous conferences throughout the country, including the White House Conference on Teen and Youth.

Dilemma: Who Gets Control Of International Students?

International Students Group Faces Organizational Dilemma

"Dearly beloved and bereaved, we are gathered here today in contemplation of the loss of a fine organization, the International Students Organization. This gallant group came into being in 1962 with the creation of their constitution which is now invalid." So could go the funeral dirge of the foreign students' organization. The ISO has provided speakers for civic clubs, firesides and other groups. Its members have interpreted at registration, acted as correspondents for students, helped with the annual BYU International Week, and been a cohesive force for international students. The ISO, valiantly carrying on since the departure of Zeke Sanchez last semester, now finds itself entangled in a legal jungle of constitutional conflict. The constitution stipulates an elected chairman. Last year the ISO functioned under the authority of the vice president of academics—which is administrated by the ASB constitution. This constitution calls for an appointed committee chairman, thus invalidating the ISO constitution. Mario L. Taracena, an international student from Guatemala, acted as this summer's chairman of the group. He feels the ISO should have its own elections and functions as outlined by its constitution. On the other hand, Grant Richards, vice president of academics, has pointed out that according to the ASBYU constitution, no one can be a part of student government and still have separate elections. The resultant confusion has reduced the efficiency of ISO. In an effort to revive interest in a vital but waning campus organization, there will be a meeting Thursday, 8 p.m., in A-130 JKB. Its purpose will be to review and hopefully solve the constitutional dilemma choking the International Students Organization.

Defends Joint Publication...

Tribune Publisher Pushes Bill

"It's less difficult to be honest when one is fat," said Salt Lake Tribune Publisher John Gallivan, speaker at the weekly Communications Symposium Monday. Gallivan's remark referred to his defense of joint publication of the Salt Lake Tribune and Deseret News by the same agency. "Both Salt Lake newspapers are better today," he stated. The joint agency was started in 1952. The journalist and publisher stressed that the publishing agency, Newspaper Agency Corp.,

does not signify a merger of the two newspapers. He pointed out that all editorial and news content in both papers is still fully separate and competitive. FAILING NEWSPAPER BILL Gallivan is a strong proponent of Senate Bill 1312, often called the "Failing Newspaper Bill," sponsored by Senator Carl Hayden of Arizona. The bill would provide limited exemption from anti-trust laws for newspaper in joint publication for newspaper survival. The Salt Laker said that S. 1312

Parking Reprieve Granted

The Provo Chamber of Commerce and ASBYU dueling with the City Commission Monday night over the Provo overnight parking ordinance—and won. "Students will not get any parking tickets until our survey is completed," conceded Commissioner Ray Murdock, after a Commerce-ASBYU proposal, requesting "no fine-paying tickets be given to anyone until Nov. 1, 1967," was presented.

INDEFINITE
However, reprieve from the cost tickets was "indefinite," according to Murdock, "but I don't think it will be for two months by any means." The Monday night meeting in the city hall marked the third week of disputing over the 14-year-old ordinance which prohibits parking on Provo streets between 2 a.m. and 5 a.m. So far only courtesy tickets have been issued with the exception of illegal parking fines dispensed to students who parked.

Suds
An air conditioner with rabies? The library has one, or so it seemed yesterday. Studious BYU students were astonished at the outpouring of billowy-foamy suds from the cooling tower of the air conditioner in the J. Reuben Clark Library. The suds, which were vaguely reminiscent of those which periodically choke the Brigham Young Fountain, were ruled as "absolutely new" the result of sensation seeking vandals. Donald Schmidt, of the library's Director's Office, said all doors to the cooling tower enclosure were locked, and attributed the suds to a mechanical failure.

Academic Standards ...

Aim: Student Aid

by Nancy Twitty
Universe Staff Writer

First of a Series

Stereotyped school days bring to mind not only a down hair and mirror-like apples for "teacher", but dreaded switches, dance cups and general fear of the stuffy schoolmaster.

This fear of "teachers" has somehow become chalking to generations and generations of students. Ever Hollywood late shows have brainwashed them, apathy explosion has bombed the dorm, students at Frisco Frosh and R.M. Flippinmad seem to class collectors in the schoolmaster bracket.

Come the first snowfall the facts will be out. New pathways will be trampled from building to building, the glistening snow around the Administration Building show nary a footprint.

Why this gap between students and administrators? Are students aware that administrators actually exist?

Obviously not.

Many students like Frisco and R.M. are missing point of their enrollment at BYU, and thus have miss of the most important offices on campus (known as unknown) as the Academic Standards Office.

Let's take an imaginary situation.

Among 1001 papers and pamphlets thrown at Frisco during registration was one which, by some means stuffed in his class schedule, only to find later, three weeks have passed and Frisco is worried. His already so far down hill he doesn't have the horse to get them back up.

This particular day he is throwing away unneeded and the forgotten pamphlet drops to the floor. He ins notices the question on the cover, "Good Grades Ah Out of curiosity and frustration, Frisco opens the book and reads, "A major goal of the personnel of the Academic Standards Office is to assist students in every way possible to get or get as much schooling as they can. If you desire information regarding your academic standing, and directions sources of assistance available to you, we encourage you come into the Academic Standards Office."

Associating the Academic Standards Office with stocks. Frisco goes against all folkways. He walks into the Administration Building and sheepishly climbs stairs to E202.

Upon hearing of the Office's quest to help, other deans like R.M. Flippinmad, immediately protest, "I haven't done anything wrong. I'm not on probation, does Academic Standards concern me?"

That protest is the point. Academic Standards—that's the whether it be hypocritical or not, that Frisco, R.M., 20,000 other students are here.

Strangely enough, Academic Standards isn't the state of the University: It's not a place to view sheepish enter hesitantly.

The office itself has no qualms about the purpose of its existence: "... to assist students in every way possible to graduate or get as much schooling as they can."

BYU has probably one of the most incentive-giving academic programs in the state. Academic standards, push-wise, are tightening. The Mormon principle of repentance forms the basis for a program that allows students apply for readmission after they have "flunked out."

The Academic Standards Office can help students study most effectively and budget their hours to include fun as well as study time.

Most collegians would agree with Francis Bacon's reply, "Ipsa scientia potestas est." Your knowledge is power. Perhaps the statement could be changed to, "Awareness that administrators are willing to help students get the power to get ahead."

Thursday: Regulations for readmission to BYU and recent change in probation rulings.

Rabble Rouser Tossed Out

During the morning session of Sunday conference a young man interrupted the proceedings by yelling, "Stop the Conference! Stop the cameras!"

BYU's vice-president of culture, who was acting as an usher, grabbed the man, threw a hammer lock on him and escorted the fellow to a nearby by exit.

The fellow from Oregon was recently released from the army and police said his contained a number of anti-mon pamphlets.

During the afternoon session, the man reappeared and made his way to south balcony which overlooks General Authorities seating area in the tabernacle.

Plainsclothes men were waiting and the moment the Oregonian opened his mouth, they moved him from the tabernacle.

The International Students Organization has a problem as indicated on our Page One article.

At first it might appear to be a rather insignificant matter but closer inspection reveals that foreign students will lose many meaningful opportunities in school and civic functions if the matter is not resolved properly.

The ISO was originally organized to provide more interaction among foreign students than was possible under the IOC (Inter-Organizational Council).

As constituted the ISO is made up of all students whose homes are outside the United States. Representation is given to both individuals and clubs.

Its functions include the organization of International Week, provision of registration and orientation assistance for foreign students and the promotion of cultural exchanges. It serves to unite a segment of the student body that has some specialized and distinct problems in adapting to the academic and social climate of BYU.

Since its organization, the ISO has been quite successful in accomplishing its goals and has provided worthwhile service and activity to a large number of students. The problem of unity seems to be controlled well by the popular voice of the members as expressed through the ISO assembly (which recognizes all foreign students) and through the election of ISO officials.

In 1965 officers decided the ISO should be placed under the newly formed Academics Office in order to give the group needed flexibility and autonomy. Since the ASBYU Constitution provides for committees to be formed under vice presidents by appointment, the question of elected officers in the ISO was discussed.

It was decided the elections were in the best interest of the group. Rather than amend the constitution the group was allowed to function as outlined by its own constitution and was not designated a committee as such.

This year the Academics Office has decided to adhere more closely to the ASBYU Constitution and appoint a chairman for the group. The ISO was given the choice of retaining their constitution but returning to the control of the IOC or giving up their present organization and become a committee under the Academics Office.

Not wishing to take a step backward the ISO decided to accept the status of a Committee in the hope of continuing its service to its members.

When asked about the change the Academics Office expressed the opinion that government by elected officials was desirable for the group but impossible under the present constitution. Hope was also expressed that the ISO could gradually be phased out of the Academics Office and the members persuaded to return to the domination of the IOC.

Since the International Students Organization is a necessary element of campus life and provides a valuable service to its members, perhaps some careful investigation is necessary before decisions are made which will effect its function at BYU. In the midst of red tape and organization may be there is still room to consider the best interests of people.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Editor:
NO DOZ

I attended another college for four semesters before coming here. There were two bookstores that carried Campus-Pacs. The Campus-Pacs contained not only NO DOZ but also some brochures advertising pipe tobacco. I found that I was perfectly capable of censoring my own Campus-Pac. I threw the tobacco advertisements in the trash but I saved the NO DOZ. I have had the NO DOZ samples for two years now, but I still haven't got around to trying them. (When I get tired I go to bed.) But if ever I felt, "by the dictates of my own conscience," that I was justified in using NO DOZ I would do so.

I also used the same health education textbook that some well-meaning but narrow-minded prof. decided should be censored. My health instructor agreed with the text, but I had been "taught correct principles" and was able to decide for myself that the questionable parts were not in keeping with the gospel.

As I entered this modern University I read the slogan, "The world is our campus." I believe that censorship of books, magazines, or even Campus-Pacs is like showing me the world with a paper bag over my head. I hope that in the future the management of the bookstore will let me and my fellow students do our own censoring. I once heard it said, "When you do for someone else that which he could do for himself you stunt his growth."

DATING

Editor:

The improper BYU social custom of staying home if you don't have a date is beginning to take its toll for another year. The upper classroom's passive acceptance of the "dates only" policy at many activities is already poisoning the attitudes of the freshmen. I am sure hundreds of girls stayed home from the game last Friday because they felt it improper to go without dates. Most girls feel it below their dignity to attend stag dances. Without girls boys don't dance, so they don't go either. It's a shame.

As the year progresses thousands of students will stay home on week ends, not because they want to but because they would feel uncomfortable without a date. It is quite a paradox. They will not go without a date, but they will not go to activities to meet people who could be future dates.

Unfortunately, after a short time students become part of a small circle of friends and feel no necessity to broaden their lives with new acquaintances to meet people who would inevitably come through the non-date situation. So many students dig a narrow groove, lacking the fortitude and the insight to have new experiences with new faces.

Students looking for a date or just a good time should get out and meet people.

"I think we are all right, we came up with all we were after and we made a motion that was approved," said Jack Craghead, president of the Chamber of Commerce, after the Monday meeting.

Provo business man, Bob Allen, presented to the commissioners' signatures of Provo residents registering complaint of the ordinance.

Meanwhile, Mayor Dixon challenged the validity of Provo citizens voting on the issue.

The commission cannot pass on authority in the public to pass a law," said the Mayor. "In an election only 70 per cent of the voters would probably vote and these couldn't give a full expression of the public's feelings."

Immunizations Offered By Health Center

"If influenza virus hits Utah County we've a lot of sick people on campus," predicts Dr. Floyd C. Hobeins, director of the health center. The gloomy prediction reflects the health center's concern over those potentially sick students who have not taken advantage of immunization services.

For three days during registration shots for influenza, diphtheria, and tetanus were offered to students at no extra cost. At this time, however, they do cost. There will be another free clinic in five or six weeks, and it is hoped that more students will take advantage of the opportunity.

Dr. Hobeins urges all students, particularly freshmen, to take advantage of the new series of shots. He added that he is pleased with the response and cooperation of the student body in completing the T.B. tests.

Hillam Back From Vietnam With Honor

By Michael Flewelling
Universe Feature Writer

Dr. Ray C. Hillam, Associate Professor of Political Science, and Director of BYU International Relations Program, recently returned with awards, from a Fulbright-Hayes Professorship in Vietnam.

Dr. Hillam was awarded, for meritorious duty, the Medal of Honor, 1st Class, by General Truong of the South Vietnamese Army. General William Westmoreland gave him the award for Civilian Patriotic Service. Both awards stem from Hillam's service as an academic advisor to the Political Warfare College of Dalat, South Vietnam.

At the Political Warfare College, Hillam taught the theory and practice of guerrilla communism and counterinsurgency. This course was taught to Vietnamese who will become staff political officers in the army and their eventual duty is to improve and motivate the Vietnamese soldier.

In addition to instructing at the warfare college, Hillam lectured at the University of Dalat.

When asked about the present situation in Vietnam, Hillam said there is a "military stalemate."

"We have made modest political and economical gains," Hillam said, "but the present 'fight the war in the north' policy and the proposed blockading of Haiphong Harbor and destruction of rail lines from China will only curb the ability of the North Vietnamese to fight a conventional war along the demilitarized zone and will do little to eliminate guerrilla communism."

Dr. Hillam defined the "infrastructure" as "a sophisticated network used to prevent the Saigon government from governing and to mobilize and manipulate the rural population."

"The recent South Vietnamese elections is a positive political step in a necessary, long range pacification program," Hillam stated, "because, for the first time, it gives the government an aura of legitimacy."

Dr. Hillam will discuss his views on Vietnam over KSL's "Public Pulse," Friday, Oct. 6 at 9 p.m.

ish Sabbatical...

Helsinki Modern, Democratic

By Shannon Sealey
Universe Feature Writer

...we had our moment of but we could sure do it over." Dr. Byron Gassman strolled comfortably in his chair.

BYU English Professor has returned from a sabbatical at the University of Helsinki, Finland, where he lectured in canon literature and modern fiction during the school

...classes closed for the year in May of 1967, he, his wife and their five children spent summer taking the "long way" and toured Europe quite leisurely.

...lectured in the English language," he smiled. "The Finnish speak English as well or even better than we do because they've heard nothing but grammar." He said that his wife learned "pidgin Finnish" was able to get by with this on index finger!"

...the chapel they attended in Helsinki, the Branch President certain that Dr. Gassman's wife had a student translator. There are two LDS branches in Helsinki, and the one we attended several active young people," he added.

HOW DIFFERENT?
...to Finnish students differ the Americans in the class-

...Gassman hesitated and then said widely. "Well, they rely on the teacher to say everything. We use very little class discussion and American teachers are used to this!" He said that the Finnish have a registration procedure very different from ours. They just go and sign up for courses from the individual professors.

...the Finnish students progress taking exams not by class standing. "I still don't understand myself," he grinned. "I appreciate the bewilderment of foreign students in our country!" He said that the Fulbright Grant that sent Gassman to Finland is another standing achievement. He received his bachelor's degree at J and then his Master's and D. at the University of Chicago.

"The Fulbright Grant sent about fifteen to twenty lecturers, professors and graduate students to Helsinki last year," he said.

How does Helsinki compare with other United States or European cities?

"It is a very modern, democratic city and the Finnish pride in architecture is very evident," Dr. Gassman went on to say that the population of about a half a million, Finland's capital city had no traffic congestion and he noticed no slum areas.

"Helsinki is just fifty years old, so of course has none of the Medieval influence of other European cities. It is a highly fashionable and cultural city and one might think that he was in the United States if he didn't stop to think about it." About cultural opportunities, Dr. Gassman was very impressed with Helsinki's two "very good" symphony orchestras and also with the Finnish and Swedish National Theaters. Sports is big in Finland too, with cross country sking the favorite of the Finns.

One particular Finnish pastime that appealed to the Gassmans was the sauna baths. He said that every apartment building and most private homes had them, and that there were several public ones in the city.

ATHLETES' FOOTNOTES

No Breathers
For Cougarsby Gary Wood
Sports Editor

If the BYU football team had any "breathers" on its 1967 schedule, they are under the bridge now.

Until last Saturday many were lamenting that the Cougars couldn't play a tougher slate of opponents now that they have pretty well proved that they are capable of taking the field against the best without trepidation.

However, another look at upcoming foes and their accomplishments thus far this season might cause a few to change their minds about the relative strength of BYU's grid schedule.

Prior to last weekend no Western Athletic Conference school had ever defeated a Big Ten team in football—the composite record was 0-7 (Wyoming 0-3, Utah 0-2, Arizona 0-2).

NONSENSE ENDS

The two WAC teams from the country—Arizona and Arizona State—ended that nonsense with stunning upsets over Ohio State and Wisconsin.

Surprising Utah came within an eyelash of knocking off Minnesota, another Big Ten team, the week before and whitewashed Oregon, 21-0, on Saturday in Ute Stadium.

Defending conference champion Wyoming, though nearly derailed in Laramie by Colorado State last weekend, has extended its winning streak to seven in a row with the victory over the Rams, and is the favorite to repeat as league titlist.

Oregon State, BYU opponent on Oct. 14, has looked very impressive to date, crushing Iowa 38-18 Saturday to maintain its unblemished record.

SOME BRILLIANCE

The remaining three Cougar foes—Texas Western, Utah State, and San Jose State—have also displayed brilliance on occasion in the yet young season. USU's MacArthur Lane was the leading rusher in the nation after two weeks.

Those who assume that Coach Tom Hudspeth is sending his troops into a "pushover" lineup of teams should know that on the basis of power points assigned after extensive research conducted by Professor Gordon L. Wise of Wright State University, BYU ranks 63rd on the list of 524.

Pittsburg's schedule ranks at the toughest in the country, followed by Georgia Tech, Auburn, Southern California, Michigan State, California, and Notre Dame in that order.

TWO HIGHER

According to Prof. Wise's calculations, the only grid squads on the Cougar schedule who play a more rugged slate of teams are Oregon State (21st) and Utah (39th). New Mexico is ranked 85th and Western Michigan 110th.

Also behind the BYU eleven is Wyoming (71st), the next Mountain Cat opponent. The Cowboys rate high on most polls these days, and Coach Hudspeth's crew is fully aware of the significance of the upcoming showdown, which may well determine the outcome of the WAC race.

Nielson Tops Osborn

by Glen Willardson
Associate Sports Editor

Keith Nielson of Brigham Young University pulled the upset of his career yesterday when he defeated Utah's Jim Osborn, 6-4, 10-8, to win the Salt Lake Tennis Club Tournament singles championship.

Osborn, a member of the Davis Cup Team and one of the nation's top tennis players, went down in defeat for the first time against Nielson. Last year Osborn defeated Nielson five times in competition and was the top-seeded player in the Western Athletic Conference.

Nielson had to beat three of his teammates—David George, Patrick Landau, and Zdravko Mincek to advance to the finals. It took Nielson three sets to win each match with his teammates, but he convincingly triumphed over Osborn in two sets.

In the doubles finals two BYU teams fought it out for the title. Larry Hall and David George won, 6-4, 10-8, over teammates John Fort and Don Lowe.

"This is the best team I've seen," admitted Coach W. Pearce following the BYU domination of the match. The Cougars' team will have a ten-day rest for competing in the BYU national Oct. 10-11.

Golfers Win Tourney

Brigham Young University freshman Don Hawken survived a sudden-death playoff in the Patin Springs Golf Invitational at Ogden Saturday to win the tournament.

Four players—three of them from BYU—died after playing the regulation 72 holes. Johnny Miller and Jack Chapen, both BYU veterans, entered the sudden-death playoff along with Hawken. Utah State's Doug Vilven was the other golfer who tied at the end of regulation play.

Miller and Vilven were eliminated from the playoff after two holes, and Hawken outlasted Chapman on the fourth hole.

The Cougar linksters dominated the tournament and won team honors for the second straight year.

Weber State College has hosted the tourney both years of its existence.

This Friday and Saturday BYU teams will compete for the Beehive Golf Invitational at Logan. Teams from Utah and neighboring states will compete for team and individual honors.

Flag Football Starts

Intramural flag football play begins Wednesday, and participants are urged to consult the intramural bulletin boards located around campus or contact team captains for information on games.

WHY

There's more than fabric superiority in Gant. In addition, "needled into the warp and woof of every Gant shirt," there's flair, fit and show — three vital ingredients that make all the difference when a man wears a Gant.

We chose Gant because they take shirt making seriously. They're hard to please (like we are) when it comes to fit of collar, its roll, its profile—how much it shows above the suit collar. They're fastidious about the way the body of the shirt drapes and folds. All must integrate to achieve that viable ingredient which gives comfort and aplomb. In substance, Gant shirts are keyed to the discerning tastes of well groomed men who appreciate quality. These men are our customers.

Wyoming Tickets
Are Running Out

Anyone wishing to attend the BYU-Wyoming football game in Laramie Saturday had better make a quick trip to the Smith Fieldhouse ticket office.

According to Dave Dredge, ticket manager, just 150 tickets to the game remain. Student price is two dollars and non-students must pay four dollars.

The Downtown Coaches Club is sponsoring a round-trip excursion to the contest on Continental coaches. Cost of the trip, which includes tickets, is $18 for students and $20 for others.

patently Gant

Gant took a falcon-look at traditional tattersalls and decided to put new life into this venerated shirting. To wit: this new bold-bright interpretation which makes button-downs more than something to hang a tie on. Tailored with a falcon's eye for detail. Varied colors—all virile, all distinctive. About $8.50 at discerning stores.

More National Fellowships Available

The Woodrow Wilson National Fellowship Foundation announces the opening of competition for two types of graduate fellowships to begin September, 1968.

Outstanding students planning college teaching careers are eligible to apply. One hundred fellowships will be granted throughout the country to first-year graduate students, and 200 dissertation fellowships will be awarded to students already in graduate school in the humanities or social sciences. The Foundation will also designate 1,000 outstanding students best qualified as potential college teachers and another thousand as honorable mention. Names of Woodrow Wilson Designates and students receiving honorable mention will be sent to dozens of graduate schools in the United States and Canada.

Students wishing to apply must be nominated by a faculty member by October 31. Upon nomination forms must be filled out and returned by November 20. This fellowship competition may other graduate awards will be described in Fall Graduate Awards Tuesday, October 10, at 4 in 184 Jesse Knight Building

North Viets Switch to Leaflets

U.S. officials reported the North Vietnamese switched from explosives to propaganda October 1, raining leaflets on the battered Con Thien Marine outpost, hardest hit in the shelling.

One of the leaflets said: "Americans — stop bombing innocent men and children. Leave to the Vietnamese."

Others repeated the charge by peace demonstration United States: "Hey, boy, how many kids have you killed?"
